

Judge Binds Russell

Clifford Russell Jr., 26, 816 Wayne, was bound over to appear Oct. 26, in Circuit Court in Benton on a charge of statutory rape following a preliminary hearing today in magistrate court.

Judge Tom Brown, Charleston, presided.

A 14-year-old Chaffee girl, the girl who brought suit against Russell, was the only witness to testify. Russell did not take the stand.

Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Tom Gilmore began the questioning, but found difficulty in obtaining the information without leading the witness.

Scott County Prosecuting Attorney Fielding Potashnick was called in to aid.

The girl related that after meeting Russell at a street dance during the Cotton Carnival in Sikeston on Sept. 27, she asked him to take her home. Another couple was in the car, but were left off in Sikeston later in the night, she testified.

She stated the alleged rape took place on a gravel road north of Sikeston off Tanner Road. She said they drove about three miles west on Tanner Road from Highway 61, then took a right turn on a gravel road for about two miles, then turned on another gravel road and drove a short distance before parking.

She told the court that she drove the car to the spot, but Russell would have hit her if she had not. After parking, she said Russell drank for a while, before the alleged act.

Difficulty in questioning arouse throughout the hearing, but particularly in obtaining a description of what happened after the car was parked.

She stated several times that they had sexual intercourse, but the court would not accept the answer, because it was a conclusion on the part of the witness. She was asked to describe exactly what happened.

Bond was continued on Russell.

Police Receive Prowler Calls

Roscoe L. Bennett, route Four, Sikeston, was charged by police Sunday with careless and imprudent driving Sunday on Moore St.

Harvey Bailey Jr., route one, Sikeston, was charged with trespassing Sunday.

Harvey Russell, 109 rear Fourth St., was charged with trespassing Sunday. He was arrested on North Ingram.

Romney to Explain Brainwashing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Michigan Gov. George Romney has accepted a congressional invitation to amplify charges he was "brainwashed" by U.S. military and diplomatic leaders in South Vietnam.

"I believe a full congressional review would be very appropriate," Romney said Monday in accepting by letter the invitation of Chairman Wayne L. Hays, D-Ohio, of the House foreign operations subcommittee.

Romney generated a political furor recently with his charge he was "brainwashed" during a visit to Saigon in 1965. He later explained he felt military and diplomatic sources failed to give him an accurate picture of the war's progress.

No date has been set for any appearance by Romney before the House panel.

U.S. programs of aid to South Vietnamese civilian victims of the war came under attack meanwhile from Chairman Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., at a Senate Judiciary subcommittee hearing. Kennedy, whose panel has probed care of civilians affected by the war, said: "The job just isn't getting done."

William S. Gaud, administrator for the Agency for International Development, which handles the civilian care program, responded to Kennedy's statement: "For heaven's sake, I haven't said or intend to say this program is being operated 100 per cent perfectly, but I do say there has been improvement."

In other Vietnam-related developments:

— The New Zealand Embassy in Washington said the nation will send a second infantry company of 170 men to serve in South Vietnam a.m. Australian Prime Minister Harold Holt announced in Canberra that his nation would increase its troop strength in South Vietnam from 6,300 to more than 8,000 men.

— Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ind., urged his colleagues in a Senate speech to study proposals made in an article by former White House aide Theodore Sorensen in his first public statement on the war, Sorensen urged an indefinite suspension of U.S. bombing of North Vietnam.

— A petition asking clemency for three soldiers imprisoned for refusing Vietnam service was presented at the White House by a small delegation. The White House had no comment on the appeal in behalf of Pfc. James Johnson and Pfc. Dennis More and David Samas, currently serving terms at the federal military prison at Ft. Leavenworth, Kans.

— Former Rep. Walter Judd, a Minnesota Republican, told newsmen he gave President Johnson an optimistic report on Vietnam. But Judd also told reporters outside the White House "Our zeal for negotiation is reducing our chances of getting it."

— The Appropriations Committee said the restriction would eliminate about 110,000 government jobs, but there would be few if any firings since turnover is heavy and positions could be left unfilled.

— The committee bill would require a 5 per cent payroll cut for federal executive agencies, require them to absorb without extra funds the $625 million pay increase now pending, and cut research spending 10 per cent. Exceptions are made for Vietnam and other urgent spending.

— Bow and other Republicans want a much deeper slash in actual expenditures to reduce the prospective budget deficit.

Some Republicans say also they may attempt to extend the reduction in government payroll funds to the employees of Congress and the judiciary.

The Appropriations Committee said the restriction would eliminate about 110,000 government jobs, but there would be few if any firings since turnover is heavy and positions could be left unfilled.

Family of 16 Solved Lack of Space Problem

DETROIT (AP) — One house was not enough for the 16-member Girard Nefcy family, so they became a two-house family.

When the family decided the bathroom backup had become unbearable, says Mrs. Nefcy, they considered an addition to their two-story brick home in northwest Detroit but were deterred by the prospect of living at a construction site.

And also, who would buy an eight-bedroom home after the children had gone?

So when neighbors across the street put their home up for sale, it took the Nefcys only about a day to decide this was the answer.

The six Nefcy teenagers—four boys and two girls—moved in and set up a dormitory while the other youngsters have spread out in the original home.

The Nefcys say there will be no misbehaving across the street—the penalty for such conduct is being returned to headquarters.

They commute across the street for meals, and a schedule of Saturday housekeeping duties keeps both homes in shape.

"It's delightful," says Mrs. Nefcy. "Having two houses has removed a lot of the friction between the big kids and the little ones."

The strict rule for the dormitory is that no one may entertain a guest or date there. Entertaining is allowed only at the main house.

For Nefcy, a truck engineer at Ford Motor Co., the greatest advantage is noticeable every morning—the addition of 2½ baths. The family also gained four bedrooms.

Kelso Store Loses $550 in Merchandise

KELSO -- Merchandise valued at $550 was taken in a burglary at Burger hardware store and the post office was broken into this morning, Deputy Sheriff Jack Stewart said today.

The burglars broke into the post office about 3 a.m. Entry was gained by breaking a lock on an office located in the same building. A hole was knocked in a plywood wall to gain entry to the post office.

The burglars ransacked the drawers and knocked a clock off the wall, but nothing was taken, Stewart said. Stamps and money were in the safe, which the burglars did not try to open.

They then crossed the street and broke into the hardware store, using a prybar taken from the post office to open the front door.

Taken at the store were eight shotguns and rifles, 12 gun covers, three electric shavers, three hedge trimmers, 12 electric knives, 12 transistor radios, two toasters, flashlights, ammunition and $12 in change.

Stewart said when an inventory of the store's merchandise is completed, the list of missing items will probably increase. The store is owned by Fred Burger.

The sheriff's office and the highway patrol are investigating.

Neither Side Pleased by Budget Cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Appropriations Committee's move toward a $2.85 billion budget cut apparently has satisfied neither Republican critics of the Johnson administration nor Democrats who say the price of a tax increase is a deep spending slash.

Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., whose Ways and Means Committee shelved President Johnson's tax boost proposal two weeks ago, declined direct comment on the Appropriations Committee action. But he said he has no plans to reconvene the Ways and Means Committee to consider tax legislation.

Mills has said the House would not pass a tax increase bill without spending cuts between $5 billion and $10 billion—and perhaps not even then.

Rep. Frank T. Bow of Ohio, senior Republican member of the Appropriations Committee, said in an interview he'll still try on the House floor to win adoption of a $5 billion spending cut.

The Appropriations Committee rewrote an emergency financing bill Monday to direct a $2.85 billion cut in federal spending—about $1.4 billion of it in the current fiscal year.

But low on a party-line vote when he tried in committee for a $5 billion cut all in the current year. But he said "I think we might win on a close vote" when he renews his fight Wednesday during House consideration of the bill.

Original purpose of the bill was to grant once more interim spending authority to government agencies whose appropriations for the budget year that began July 1 still haven't been approved by Congress.

Bow said the committee budget cut "is a step in the right direction but it still doesn't do enough."

The committee bill would require a 5 per cent payroll cut for federal executive agencies, require them to absorb without extra funds the $625 million pay increase now pending, and cut research spending 10 per cent. Exceptions are made for Vietnam and other urgent spending.

Bow and other Republicans want a much deeper slash in actual expenditures to reduce the prospective budget deficit.

Some Republicans say also they may attempt to extend the reduction in government payroll funds to the employees of Congress and the judiciary.

The Appropriations Committee said the restriction would eliminate about 110,000 government jobs, but there would be few if any firings since turnover is heavy and positions could be left unfilled.

U.S. Offer to Buy Cotton Products Hailed by Bracey

PORTAGEVILLE -- The announcement by the United States department of agriculture of an initial offer to purchase cotton products for inclusion in foreign donations under the food-for-freedom program was hailed today as "a significant breakthrough for cotton and cotton farmers" by Hilton L. Bracey, cotton spokesman for MidContinent Farmers Association.

As announced by the USDA, cotton products so purchased must be manufactured entirely in the U.S. from upland cotton produced in the U.S. They will be used for relief and rehabilitation of refugees through the Agency for International Development. Bracey said that the new program which is one of three major proposals advanced by MFA to revitalize the cotton industry, promises "to do more to increase cotton consumption than any single thing that could be done at this time."

He noted that inclusion of cotton in the various welfare programs, as advocated by MFA, would extend and complement the long established humanitarian principle of sharing our agricultural abundance with the needy, both at home and abroad. Also, it would broaden both domestic and foreign outlets for cotton without additional costs to the taxpayer and without "check-offs" and "levies" against the income of cotton producers. "Unlike many nebulous possibilities which might help the cotton industry 10 to 20 years from now, this new program is a tangible thing which will help right now when help is needed most," Bracey added.

While hailing enactment of its request for inclusion of raw cotton and cotton products in welfare programs, MFA is calling anew for adoption of the other two parts--an aggressive export sales program and a national security reserve -- of its three pronged program for revitalizing the cotton industry. MFA continues to stress that U.S. cotton producers must be permitted to meet the competition of foreign production on a sale to sale basis.

U.S. cotton is now hampered by the so-called one-price system which makes it impossible for adjustments to be made in world pricing programs without like adjustments in the domestic market--whether justified or not. MFA advocates an export policy which would recognize fluctuating world conditions and make it possible for U.S. cotton to meet its competition in the world market on a sale to sale basis.

Current reports indicate that MFA's national cotton reserve along with a national food reserve is receiving serious consideration in the Congress. These reports also indicate a fair possibility that legislative authority for the reserve may be provided by the current session. If not acted upon by the current session, it will doubtless receive early consideration early next year.

Policy Clash Shaping

ABOARD SS INDEPENDENCE (AP) — A fight over a resolution endorsing President Johnson's Vietnam policy shaped up today as the floating National Governors Conference leaned toward the Virgin Islands.

Utah Democrat Calvin L. Rampton said he would offer his 44 colleagues a motion backing Johnson's pursuit of the war. He received immediate support from the conference chairman, Gov. William L. Guy, D.N.D., who said: "I favor a resolution in support of the commander in chief."

But the plan ran into resistance from Michigan Gov. George Romney, a recent critic of the administration's war policy and a potential Republican candidate for the 1968 presidential nomination.

Regardless of the resolution's merits, Romney said in an interview, "whenever there's an effort to use this conference for matters other than matters relating to the states, it tends to be disruptive and divisive."

Other Republicans and Democrats seemed eager to head off a possibly harsh confrontation on Vietnam.

"There's no need for any great debate," said Illinois Democrat Otto Kerner, pointing out that a conference of governors announced support for Johnson's position earlier in the year and that 20 Democratic governors lined up with the President in a caucus Sunday.

Also apparently wary of war policy pronouncements were Republicans John A. Love of Colorado and James A. Rhodes of Ohio, who said they did not think there would be a state-enactment of policy.

"After all," Love said, "We Republicans are just about as divided as the Democrats on this issue and they have a candidate and we don't."

Purple Heart Given To Wayne Hatley

Mrs. Wayne Hatley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Walker, 231 East Gladys St., has been notified that her husband, Sp-4 Kenneth W. Hatley, was awarded a purple heart for second degree burns he received in action Oct. 6 in Vietnam.

Hatley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Atlas Hatley, 140 North Third St., received burns on his chest, back, right arm and leg and is now recovering at a base hospital in Saigon.

Hatley entered the army in November and arrived in Vietnam April 23.

New Operation Under Way in Ground War

SAIGON (AP) -- The U.S. Command today announced a new ground operation aimed at taking pressure off South Vietnam's northernmost provinces. The command said 21 Marines and 44 Communists had been killed in the first week of the operation and 167 Marines wounded.

In the air war, U.S. Navy planes returned to Haiphong for repeat raids on a missile-helicopter assembly base, a major highway bridge and three SAM anti-aircraft missile sites.

Possibly 5,000 men were thrown into the new ground operation--Medina -- 28 miles south of the embattled demilitarized zone. They included several battalions from the 1st Marine Regiment, a special battalion landing team from the 7th Fleet's Ready Amphibious Force and South Vietnamese troops.

The operation began Oct. 11 but was not announced until today for security reasons. Marine intelligence reports indicate there are 17 Communist battalions operating around the DMZ and in Quang Tri Province, perhaps more than 7,000 enemy troops. Operation Medina is under way in the dense, jungled mountains near the southern boundary of Quang Tri Province, nine miles south of the provincial capital of Quang Tri.

U.S. spokesman said heavy monsoon rains were making the operation difficult. The heaviest fighting so far occurred last Thursday when 300 Marines ran up against about 400 North Vietnamese troops in a battle that rages for 4 1/2 hours.

Backed by artillery and helicopter gunships, the Marines reported killing 30 of the enemy, while eight Marines were killed and 46 wounded.

Since then, there have been numerous scattered contacts between U.S. Navy bombers streaked in from carriers in the Gulf of Tonkin Monday to attack a huge military compound three miles south of the center of Haiphong for the third time in eight days and the northern approach to the Kien An highway bridge 1.7 miles from the heart of the city.

Mideast Peace Hopes Rise With Kuznetsov's Arrival

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The arrival at the U.N. General Assembly of Vasily V. Kuznetsov, a Soviet deputy foreign minister and key negotiator, raised hopes today that the Russians may be ready to join in seeking peace in the Middle East.

One high-level Communist delegate said that Kuznetsov's arrival Monday was "a good sign" for possible solution of the Arab-Israeli stalemate. Kuznetsov was sent to New York in 1962 to negotiate with the United States over the Cuban missile crisis.

Jordan, one of the chief Arab participants in discussions on the Middle East, has sent its new foreign minister, Abdul Mo'men Rifai to New York to take part in the talks.

The United States is keeping a tight lid, however, on its role in the talks on the Middle East. U.S. sources confirmed that Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg was meeting with Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad, but they said nothing would be made public on the substance of the talks. An Egyptian source said they met Monday for 90 minutes.

Riad had met at least once before with Goldberg and conferred for 90 minutes with Sec. of State Dean Rusk in the opening days of the General Assembly.

"Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban left New York Sunday for Jerusalem, but he was expected to return in a week or 10 days. Attempts have been going on for more than three weeks to work out a meaningful resolution on the Middle East deadlock for the Security Council.

One proposal reported to have considerable support is for the council to list general principles for a settlement and authorize Secretary-General U Thant to name a special representative to work out details between the opposing sides.

The United States has been seeking Moscow's support for renewal of a combined attempt to win the endorsement of the Arab world for a resolution that would combine the two main sticking points:

— Israeli withdrawal from territories of Egypt, Jordan and Syria seized during the June war.

— Arab recognition of Israel's right to exist as a nation and an end to the 20-year Arab state of war against Israel.

On the other front, firefighters strained to keep the flames from timber stands. From 500 acres of brush in the 50's, said William Waltrip of U.S. Forest Service.

Firefighters declared victory Monday over a two-day brush fire which blackened 25,000 acres.

Purple Heart Given To Wayne Hatley

Tuesday, October 17, 1954, U.S.A. -- The end of the rainbow is confiscated by federal tax agents.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS! NATIONAL FOREST PRODUCTS WEEK ---3000 A.D.

The recreational importance and commercial value of the nation's timber lands have been brought sharply to public attention in recent months as a result of proposals to establish additional national parks and wilderness areas. People throughout the 50 states have an increasing awareness of their stake in the nation's timber resources and in the future of our forests than ever before.

National Forest Products Week, October 15 to 21 this year, is an appropriate time to consider the accomplishments of modern forest management and utilization. First of all, the development of tree farms on private timber land in virtually every corner of the country where trees grow has been one of the great industrial achievements of our time. It has reversed civilization's depletion of the forests. Today, in the United States, more wood is grown than is used. Wise tax policies, quite generally established, are essential in making it economically feasible to maintain a tree farming operation, which won't see a harvest for 50, 80 or 100 years.

It has been proven that America can have trees and still enjoy their products, and thanks to the technical advancement of the forest industries, those products are nearly limitless in number and application. Through chemical processes, new and useful products are constantly being created from wood wastes such as sawdust, bark and chips. Some 2,600 chemicals having an annual market value of around $260 million have been extracted from these wastes. The forest industries which produce them provide an important part of the nation's taxes to support government, as well as the jobs and opportunities on which a secure future can be based.

Thanks to the advances made in the free enterprise timber industry, vast forests will exist on this continent for the enjoyment of generations yet unborn. National Forest Products Week in the year 3000 A. D. will probably be a most appropriate observance.

MOON WITHIN REACH

As preparations go into high gear, here and in over 13,000 other American communities, for "the world's greatest effort by children to help children," people whose doorbells will be rung by UNICEF Trick or Treaters on Halloween will be interested in the following considerations:

- * Of about 800 million children in Asia, Africa, Latin America, and the Middle East, some 600 million live at or below a bare subsistence level.
- * In vast areas of the globe, children sleep without shelter of any kind.
- * Hundreds of thousands of children afflicted by festering diseases are beyond the reach of medical care.
- * At least 500 million children suffer from hunger or malnutrition.
- * As a result of such appalling conditions, about 30,000 children die every day.

Last fall, our own boys and girls, over 3.5 million strong, went out on Oct. 31 and collected a whopping $2.7 million-plus in pennies, nickels and dimes for the Nobel Peace Prize-winning United Nations Children's Fund.

This has meant vital help and hope for innumerable little victims of scourges which must be wiped out once and for all. Halloween, 1967 will mark another step in the right direction if our fellow-citizens open their doors and their hearts to children who help other children.

In the words of UNICEF's Executive Director, Henry R. Labouisse, "In an era where the words 'reaching for the moon' no longer mean striving for the impossible, but simply describe a practically possibility, there is no longer any excuse for the world to permit its children to go hungry in body or in mind, to be deprived of the essentials of life -- food, medical care and educational opportunities."

You often hear people speak of "dry wit." Is there such a thing as "wet wit?"

He is not a good talker; but everybody likes to talk with him, because he does not fear to express an opinion, tactfully, if asked.

Many times we have heard the question asked. Why do Elvis Presley pictures draw so well? We wonder if the ones who asks that question have ever gone to see one?

They are pictures that every parent can be assured that it will be clean, healthy, family entertainment.

That could be the answer maybe.

We notice that most of the cartoons depicting Congress draw them so old and senile looking. Can this be true to eye? Is Congress made up of old men who are past their prime? Who are unable to concentrate long enough on a bill to read it through, and follow the leadership by voting for it regardless of what it contains, upon being told that it is an administration bill and should be supported?

A consoling thought about today's fashions is that young people of today will have to show their family albums later.

PROGRESSIVE COURT STEP

Circuit Judge William Billings' plan to provide a short course of "indoctrination" for juries in Dunklin and Stoddard Counties strikes us as being most appropriate in this day and age. The judge announced yesterday he plans to call the 48 men and women summoned for jury duty during the October term of Circuit Court for a brief period of instruction; he also plans to issue to each of them a handbook that sets out the duties and responsibilities of members of a jury panel.

The move to provide a measure of education for men and women who could, during the course of their jury duty, decide the fate of several lives and determine damages ranging into hundreds of thousands of dollars should receive public support and encouragement.

We suspect there may also be an ulterior motive behind Judge Billings' efforts, simply because many jurists today are expressing concern about the quality of justice and the low-standing of the courts among the public. If the judge can instill some additional respect for law and order, and if he can assure the conscientious service of persons selected for jury duty, he will have gone a long way in solving both of the judicial dilemmas now facing the nation in both small and large courts.

While many persons speak eagerly of "court reform," the truth is that part of the problem rests not with officers of the various courts but with public apathy and a general unwillingness of citizens to serve as jurors. Admittedly such service requires some effort, and perhaps even financial sacrifice, but the term "public courts" means that the citizenry has a stake in the administration of justice just as do police officers, attorneys, judges and those involved in litigation.

We commend Judge Billings for his innovation; we consider it to be a major improvement in the judicial process of the Bootheel.

MISTAKEN ATTACK

The attack by Senator Edward Long of Missouri on the Food and Drug Administration and the Federal Trade Commission, in a Jefferson City speech, was intemperate and could undermine public confidence in hard-won reforms.

Returning to a theme he had followed hitherto, Mr. Long said FTC "is opposed to all blood banks which do not operate for a profit" and "is in favor of blood banks which get a large portion of their blood from alcoholics and people suffering from malnutrition." There is no substance to either of those statements. FTC ruled that the Community Blood Bank of Kansas City, operated nonprofit by hospitals, physicians and private citizens, violated federal anti-trust laws by combining illegally to reject blood from two commercial blood banks. There is evidence that commercial blood banks often draw from alcoholics, drug addicts and others more likely than nonpaid donors to carry hepatitis. But the FTC neither opposed nonprofit banks nor favored commercial ones in its ruling; it simply opposed alleged monopoly in human blood.

Senator Long's assault on the FDA was even more unsupportable. He said that it, along with FTC, is "undermining your fight and my fight for better health" and is a "barrier between the local citizens and adequate health programs." Exactly the reverse is true. Far from "trying to tell reputable drug firms how to develop drugs, trying to dictate to doctors how to practice medicine, and trying to tell us all what we can and cannot eat," FDA is trying to protect the public from drugs that are unsafe, substandard or ineffective, and from foods that contain dangerous chemicals.

The Senator descended to the ridiculous in declaring that if FDA had possessed its present powers "a few years ago" the public would have been "deprived of penicillin, cortisone and even aspirin." To the contrary, the only indication of what the agency would have done "a few years ago" is what it is doing now, and it has not used its enhanced authority to deprive the public of safe and tested drugs.

PENALIZING THE AIRLINES

A traveler may now begin to extract stiffer revenge from the airline that confirms his reservation but finds at the last minute there's no seat for him on the plane. New rules of the Civil Aeronautics Board, effective Tuesday, Oct. 17, require the airline to refund his ticket and carry him free if it cannot get him to his destination within two hours after the original flight was due there (four hours on an overseas route).

The Civil Aeronautics Board has been trying out the penalty system, to deter airline overbooking, since last January. Until now the penalties have been milder -- a refund of half the passenger's fare plus a penalty of $5 to $40. The new rules call for full refunds, in some instances higher than the ticket price. The minimum refund is $25; the maximum is $200.

But even the stiffer new penalties have loopholes. A New York to Los Angeles passenger booked on a flight stopping in Chicago, for instance, would be refunded only the New York-Chicago leg of the journey. He would receive no compensation, moreover, if he were bumped because the Government suddenly requisitioned seats on the plane. And the airline would suffer no penalty if passengers were transferred from their scheduled plane to smaller and slower aircraft for operational or safety reasons.

Still, the new rules are expected to inhibit overselling, a much-criticized practice of the airlines. This they do sometimes accidentally but more often, it is believed, to protect themselves against "no shows," persons who phone in for reservations but fail to show up at flight time.

Off to help needy children.

Operators and passengers of motorcycles are now required by law to wear protective headgear, it was noted by Colonel E. I. (Mike) Hockaday, Superintendent of the Missouri State Highway Patrol. The law became effective October 13. "Many cyclists killed in traffic accidents die from head injuries," Hockaday stated. "The wearing of protective headgear such as a helmet will help protect the motorcyclist from death or serious injury should he be involved in an accident."

The Patrol Superintendent also noted that effective January 1, 1968, operators of motorcycles will be required by State law to have a valid operator's or chauffeur's license which shows that they have successfully passed an examination for the operation of a motorcycle.

One of the reasons for this legislation is the rapid increase of motorcycle and motorbike accidents in the state. For example, of the accidents investigated by the Patrol outside of cities of over 10,000 population last year, 331 involved cycles. In 1965, there were 212 cycles involved in accidents in these areas.

"Many of the mishaps involving motorcyclists have resulted in death or serious injury," Colonel Hockaday declared. "This new safety legislation will help protect the cyclist should he be involved in an accident and better assure that only those persons capable of operating a motorcycle will be found on the State's streets and highways. Also, I want to emphasize that passengers as well as operators must wear protective headgear when riding on a motorcycle."

DELETION OF INVALID TAX CREDIT RULES REQUESTED
In a letter to Interior Secretary Stewart L. Udall, the National Association of Manufacturers has asked deletion of parts of regulations which determine eligibility of manufacturers for investment credit on capital expenditures on pollution control equipment.

The NAM contends that the proposed regulations which require for eligibility that installations conform to the Department's Guidelines for Establishing Water Quality Standards for Interstate Waters are invalid. The Guidelines, the NAM Law Department letters states, were issued by the Federal Water Pollution Control Administration last May without any authorization in the Federal Water Pollution Control Act, without notice, without hearings, without opportunity for public comment and without being printed in The Federal Register.

Therefore, the Guidelines, the NAM states, have no legal force or effect and should not be considered by the Secretary in issuing certifications under section 48 (h) (12) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 as amended.

Furthermore, the NAM points out, the Guidelines "contain incorrect interpretations" of the Act. Guideline No. 2, the letter states, makes no distinction between treated and untreated waste in setting standards for water quality, while Guideline No. 8 appears to require treatment of all wastes under certain standards regardless of whether a real need exists and regardless of costs -- an approach not authorized in the Act.

The regulations proposed, the NAM further states, also attempt to apply conditions to private installations which the Act clearly applies only to the Government's own installations. Congress provided that during the suspension of the 7 per cent investment credit against Federal income taxes the credit would be continued for pollution control installations.

A $10 BILLION
"MISCALCULATION"
Even by Washington's easy come, easy go standards, $10 billion is a lot of money. Which makes the following story all the more incredible.

On December 6, 1966, the Texas White House admitted officially that the war in Vietnam is costing about twice as much as was estimated in the budget submitted in January - some $20 billion instead of $10 billion. The new Vietnam figure will drive defense spending in the current fiscal year to approximately $67 billion.

Rumors have been circulating in Washington for months about the Administration's possible underestimate of Vietnam war costs. All such suggestions were scornfully dismissed. Typical was this comment by Treasury Secretary Henry Fowler in late March:

"Our current estimates of Vietnam expenditures remain, in the view of those most qualified to judge, an accurate evaluation of our need as far as we can now foresee."

Mr. Fowler has made no public comment since the White House's admission that it goofed but that paragon of the computer, Defense Secretary McNamara, has. He insists that no error was made! Mr. McNamara argues that there has simply been a change in assumptions on which the original budget was made.

And just what was the original assumption? That the war in Vietnam would end by June 30, 1967. And why was this assumption made? Because that date is the end of the fiscal year, and Mr. McNamara wanted to avoid any needless buildup of surplus!

When Mr. McNamara was finally forced to admit that the war would not end neatly and tidily on June 30, 1967, he gave the order to increase manpower and procurement. The approximate extra cost: $10 billion.

Now while it is possible for anyone, including Mr. McNamara, to make a mathematical mistake, $10 billion is no "miscalculation" -- it is a gross and possibly deliberate error. We can only conclude that the Defense Department was trying to make the Vietnam war seem cheaper than it is - and the White House went along. It was, after all, an election year.

At the very least, there should be a thorough Congressional inquiry into that $10 billion bungle, and a pledge by Mr. McNamara that he will think less of our fighting men in Vietnam.

TIME TO GET DIRTY
Two small boys at the Salvation Army dinner put their grimy little hands side by side on the white table cloth.

"Mine's dirtier than your'n!" exclaimed one, triumphantly. "Huh!" snorted the other disdainfully, "you're two years older'n me."

A young boy of seven went to a movie and saw a picture co-starring Marilyn Monroe and Marlon Brando. In one passionate scene, Marlon tore off Marilyn's blouse and said: "I want what I want when I want it!"

This idea really caught on with the small boy and he ran right home to try it out on the little girl next door. The first thing he did when he arrived at her house was to call her out into the yard, rip off her blouse and

WASHINGTON -- The Electrical Giant, Ebasco Services, has been caught in the act of attempting to subvert an atomic energy official who was evaluating the safety of an Ebasco-designed nuclear reactor.

The official, Paul Check, headed the evaluation team that assessed the safety features of a reactor to be constructed at Vernon, Vermont.

The day before the safety report was submitted, L.F.C. Reichle, an Ebasco Vice President, telephoned Check and invited him to dinner. Reichle was high in the hierarchy of Ebasco, Check an unknown engineer who only recently had come to work for the Atomic Energy Commission.

Check confessed to this column that he had been naive for not wondering why Reichle sought him out. He insisted, however, that they had not discussed the contents of the confidential safety report.

The amazing fact is, however, that just four days before the young engineer was scheduled to answer questions about the safety of the Ebasco reactor before the Atomic Safety and Licensing Board, Reichle telephoned him from New York and offered him a job as Ebasco's chief licensing engineer.

Check flew to New York City to discuss the job offer shortly before the formal hearings were convened on the safety of the proposed nuclear reactor. When his superiors learned about this, they suspended him from all negotiations with Ebasco.

"I simply was not aware of all the restrictions on my behavior as a civil servant," Check explained to this column, citing his surprise, however, the most

INVESTMENT CREDIT
W. P. Gullander, President of the National Association of Manufacturers, recently issued a public statement supporting the proposal to restore the 7 percent investment credit for capital expenditures. At the same time, Mr. Gullander expressed opposition to the proposed 6 percent income tax surtax on corporate income.

The NAM statement indicated that President Johnson has correctly analyzed the business indicators, and is to be commended for asking that the Congress restore the 7 percent investment credit and accelerated depreciation immediately. The President's recommendation cannot help but strengthen business confidence, boppers." Certainly there are irresponsible youngsters, but

NAM hopes, however, that the President and the Congress will take affirmative action to reduce or postpone nonessential Federal spending, so that it will not be necessary to impose the 6 percent tax on personal and corporate incomes which the President has proposed and still believes to be desirable.

He dropped around a girl's house and as he ran up the steps to greet her he was confronted by her little brother sitting on the top step. "Hi, Billy," he said. "Hi," said the brat. "Is your sister expecting me?" "Yeah."

NO FRIEND OF HOUSEWIVES
Gracious, Greying Rep. Catherine May, R-Wash., has claimed during her Congressional career that she is the friend and champion of the housewife. This weel she is proving otherwise. She has become the friend of the American Meat Institute.

Most housewives don't realize that 25 per cent of their meat is processed and packaged by plants that are exempt from Federal inspection because they are located within State boundaries. These plants have been marketing meat from what is known in the trade as 4D animals -- dead, dying, diseased and disabled. The animals often are slaughtered under the most unsanitary, revolting conditions.

The tainted meat is disguised, however, by the use of antibiotics, preservatives, seasoning and coloring agents. Housewives purchasing the meat never suspecting that it may be spoiled or, in some cases, even diseased. To bring these plants under Federal inspection, Congressmen Neal Smith, D-Iowa, and Tom Foley, D-Wash., introduced a Tough Meat Inspection bill. However, the House Agriculture Committee, under pressure from the powerful American Meat Institute, watered down the legislation so that the Federal inspectors could offer little more than technical advice to intrastate meat processors.

A showdown vote is scheduled this week in the House. Behind the scenes, the meat lobbyists have been busy buttonholing and backslapping Congressmen to make sure the Smith-Foley bill won't be revived.

Leading the fight against effective meat inspection will be House Agriculture Chairman W. R. Poage, D-Tex., who has a notorious record for siding with the Farm Bureau and the Big Food Processors against the ex-farmers and consumers. More planned to this column, citing his surprise, however, the most

Bill Carr, Eddie Felker Named Defensive Stars

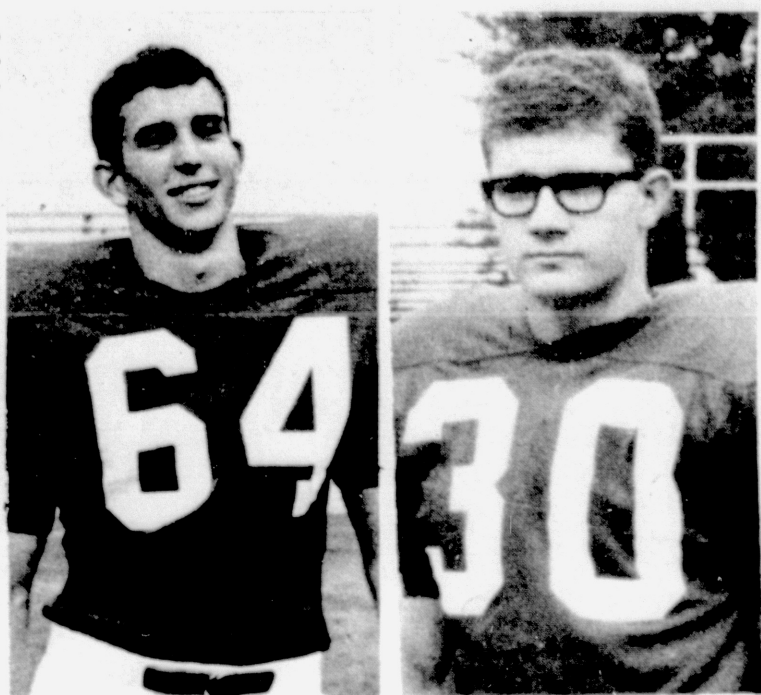

Two seniors were named today as the outstanding defensive players in last Friday's 45-7 victory over Dexter. They were selected by the coaching staff of Sikeston high school.

Bill Carr was named as the outstanding defensive lineman while teammate Eddie Felker received the outstanding defensive back nomination. Carr plays left outside linebacker for Bill Sapp's football crew and is in his third season. Felker was named as the outstanding back of the week with his play as the Bulldog safety.

Both saw little action after the first quarter, but excelled in their performance while in the game, breaking up Dexter drives time after time. Carr, who tipped the scales at 164 pounds at the start of the season, also plays on the offensive squad as a guard on the left side of the line. Felker, who is swift afoot, serves on the offensive unit as a fullback and weighs 160 pounds. Bruce Farris seems well on his way to recovery of an illness, which held him out of last Friday's game, and is this week's likely signal caller. The Bulldogs square off against Cape Girardeau Central at Cape Thursday night in a northern conference game.

Cardinals Named To AP Star Squad

NEW YORK (AP) — The National League placed six players and the American League four on the Major League Baseball All-Star team for 1967 selected in The Associated Press' annual poll.

Outfielders Roberto Clemente of Pittsburgh and Hank Aaron of Atlanta and first baseman Orlando Cepeda, each a leader in an important hitting category, were among the NL players named to the squad. Clemente won the batting crown with a .357 mark. Aaron led in homers with 39 and Cepeda in runs batted in with 111.

Third baseman Ron Santo of the Chicago Cubs, catcher Tim Lincecum of St. Louis and left-handed pitcher Mike McCormick of San Francisco were the other National League players. Representing the American League on the first team were outfielder Carl Yastrzemski of Boston, the circuit's triple crown winner, right-handed pitcher Jim Lonborg, also of the Red Sox, rookie second baseman Rod Carew of Minnesota and shortstop Jim Fregosi, California.

Yastrzemski, who led in batting with .326 and RBIs, 121, and tied Minnesota's Harmon Killebrew in homers at 44, drew the most votes from among the 403 baseball writers and broadcasters who voted in the balloting. Yaz had 389 votes. Clemente was next with 373 followed by Cepeda with 347.

Named to the second team were second baseman Julian Javier and outfielder Curt Flood of St. Louis, third baseman Brooks Robinson and outfielder Frank Robinson of Baltimore, outfielder Al Kaline and catcher Bill Freehan of Detroit, southpaw pitcher Gary Peters and right-handed pitcher Joel Horlen of the Chicago White Sox, shortstop Rico Petrocelli of Boston, and Killebrew.

Southern California Sends Irish Tumbling From Poll

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The luck of the Irish faded completely today when Notre Dame dropped from the list of ranking college football teams while Southern California held a solid lead in The Associated Press' weekly poll. Tennessee and Wyoming made their first appearances in the Top Ten.

Notre Dame, favored to repeat as national champions, tumbled all the way out as a result of its 24-7 setback by Southern California Saturday. The Irish were fifth a week ago. The Trojans, unbeaten in five games, collected 36 first-place votes and 432 points in the balloting by a national panel of 44 sports writers and broadcasters. Purdue held second place with seven votes for the top position and 389 points on a basis of 10 for a first-place vote, nine for second etc. The Boilermakers overcame Ohio State 41-6 for their fourth triumph against no losses.

UCLA, a 37-14 victor over California for its fifth victory, advanced one place to third. The Bruins accumulated 325 points in the poll.

Colorado is fourth followed by North Carolina State, Alabama, Tennessee, Georgia, Houston and Wyoming in that order. Colorado climbed two places after trouncing Missouri 23-9. North Carolina State zoomed four positions on the strength of its 31-9 triumph over Maryland while Alabama moved up one place to sixth. The Crimson Tide defeated Vanderbilt 35-21 for a 3-0-1 mark.

The Houston Cougars, idle last weekend, advanced to ninth place, a gain of one notch. Wyoming, 5-0 after its 28-0 trouncing of Utah, completes the list of ranked teams. Nebraska, No. 8 a week ago, also slipped from the rankings after its 10-0 setback by Kansas, alphabetically: Arizona State,

Mizzou's Devine OK After Exam

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Big night football coaches and their players looked at films Monday and what do you know? Things looked about the same to the coaches as they did after Saturday's games.

"The films were all right," said Pepper Rodgers of Kansas, whose first coaching victory was a big 10-0 upset over Nebraska. "It was the best we've played so far, but we've got to keep improving or we won't beat anyone else."

Nebraska Coach Bob Devaney said the films showed that mistakes didn't beat his team. "They beat us individually and they beat us collectively," he said.

Dan Devine, Missouri coach, said the films showed unbeaten Colorado, a 23-0 winner, was simply superior to his club.

"No one played great for us but no one played badly either!" Devine said. "It was hard to find fault with anyone—except Colorado."

This was before Devine became ill and fainted at a squad meeting and was taken to Boone County Hospital as a precautionary measure. After the hospital conducted tests, including an electrocardiogram, Devine walked out of the hospital with his wife and went home.

The hospital said he was suffering from fatigue. Oklahoma Coach Chuck Fairbanks praised the outstanding play of nose guard Granville Liggins and linebacker Rock Goodwin in the 9-7 loss to Texas.

He said "Liggins made such a fantastic second effort chasing the football and making tackles, not only at the line of scrimmage but also in the open to keep several plays from going for long gains."

Fairbanks said he still had confidence in place kicker Mike Vachon, who missed a pair of close-in field goal tries.

K-State Coach Vince Gibson said the films showed center Bob Stull was the best offensive lineman and tackle Bill Salat the best on defense.

"We'll work on our blocking and see who wants to play," Gibson said. The injury news was mostly good around the conference. Some key promotions were made. Fairbanks moved sophomore Rick Baldrige into the starting fullback spot. Devine said Ron McBride will get a shot at the starting left halfback spot and Mike Ewing will see more action at both halfbacks.

Emerly Hicks, 224-pound middle guard suspended for the Nebraska game, rejoined the Kansas squad but Rodgers said he'll have to beat out Willie McDaniel, who made his first start against the Huskers.

Iowa State Coach Clay Stapleton was high in his praise of George Dimitri, defensive tackle who made four tackles for 47 yards in losses. Phil Cutchin, Oklahoma State coach, named center John Kolb and Jerry Philpott and defensive guard Jimmy Goodwin as tri-captains for the Kansas game.

Top HS Grid Action At Cape

Poplar Bluff and Sikeston survived last week's top games and remain the only undefeated teams in Southeast Missouri grid football circles. Both are northern conference teams.

Bluff emerged in its northern conference clash against Cape Girardeau Central with a 6-0 victory to keep its winning 20-game string intact. It will go for its 21st and seventh straight this season as it visits the southern East Prairie, who went 0 for six this season, has allowed opponents a total of 140 points while scoring only 14.

Sikeston had a relatively easy weekend find at Charleston. The Bulldogs raced to a 45-7 victory in rolling to their fifth straight season victory and 10th consecutive triumph in two years.

For the second week in a row, Cape Central will figure as one of the teams in the top attraction in a northern conference game Thursday night. A crucial game for both teams, a Sikeston loss could move it in a decisive contest against Poplar Bluff in the last game of the season. A Cape loss would eliminate them from the conference race.

The Cape-Sikeston clash is one of four conference games slated for this week, two in each division.

Other action in the north will be at Perryville, where Kennett visits. South matches will take place at Portageville, where Caruthersville visits, and Malden, where Chaffee calls for the Green Waves' homecoming.

Malden could claim a share of the south's conference lead with Dexter by winning and set up a last game of the season clash.

According to statistics, Sikeston leads the district in the defensive department, allowing only 28 points to be scored against this season. Bluff is second with 32 and Cape third with 39. In the offensive department, Portageville leads with 180 points scored, with Poplar Bluff second with 178 and Sikeston third with 153.

The East Prairie-Gideon match is the biggest non-conference action slated this week. Gideon goes for its third season win to give it the biggest season since initiating football six years ago. The Eagles will be looking for win number one.

The Schedule: Thursday Sikeston at Cape + Friday Sikeston at Dexter + Saturday Sikeston at Charleston + Sunday East Prairie at Gideon + Monday East Prairie at Portageville + Tuesday Chaffee at Malden +

Import Limit Battle Slated

WASHINGTON (AP) — The administration is hustling five Cabinet members up to Capitol Hill Wednesday for a fight against moves to limit imports. Protectionist sentiment has brought on proposals to limit imports of such diverse products as zinc, ground fish, furs and baseball gloves.

State Department officials say more than two-fifths of U.S. imports—which totaled about $25 billion last year—would be affected if all the proposed limitations were adopted.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk will head the administration witnesses before the Senate Finance Committee. Cabinet mates Alexander B. Trowbridge of Commerce, W. Willard Wirtz of Labor, Orville L. Freeman of Agriculture and Stewart L. Udall of Interior also are listed for testimony.

So is William M. Roth, President Johnson's special representative for trade negotiations, who handled much of the dealings during the Geneva tariff talks. They ended earlier this year with agreement among principal non-Communist traders on a wide variety of tariff cuts.

The State Department said Rusk's "decision to appear personally underlines the seriousness of the current protectionist threat to the continued prosperity of the American people and the foreign relations of the United States."

It called the various import limitation plans an attempt to reserve the U.S. policy of eliminating trade barriers by negotiations with other countries.

The current hearings are on proposals by Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, the Republican leader, to attach a variety of import quotas to a pending Social Security bill.

Sen. Mike Mansfield, the Democratic leader, has cosponsored an oil import quota bill but said Monday he hopes it will not be attached to the Social Security bill.

Sen. Vance Hartke, D., Ind., introduced a steel import measure Monday.

Quota backers figure they must attach their plans to some bill watched by President Johnson, otherwise he could simply veto the legislation.

How to start an

INVESTMENT PROGRAM

If you have been thinking about starting an investment program—here's a suggested first step.

We have prepared two sample investment plans. One for current income and one that emphasizes growth in the value of your investment for future use. Both plans show diversified investments to minimize risk, and are based on a $5,000 investment. Of course, either can be revised for a larger or smaller amount.

You'll see the number of shares purchased and the total amount invested in each specific company, current per share price of each security, current annual dividends and when they are paid, and a brief description of the business of each company.

Stop in, phone or write for your free copy of our sample investment plan. Be sure to specify "current income" or "growth". This could be the beginning of a brighter financial future for you and your family.

"I'm a stock broker. Here's one thing every investor should remember about listed stocks."

"There is generally more information available about them—and that's a big plus."

Information of what kind?

"Information that might affect the market value of a stock or influence your investment decision. When a company originally applies for listing on the New York Stock Exchange, it's expected to publicize such information."

Is it mostly a matter of telling the public about the company's profit picture?

"That's an important part of it, but by no means the whole story. Every listed company agrees to put out an annual financial report. These contain such facts and figures as sales, earnings and dividends, and often a summary of important developments and plans. Most of them also issue quarterly statements."

What if something big happens in the company?

"Under Exchange policy, they are expected to publicize these matters, and do it promptly. For example, new products, a proposed merger, management changes—such news could carry a lot of weight with the investor. The whole idea is to help the investor make a well-informed decision."

FREE INVESTMENT GUIDE ON LISTED STOCKS—SEND COUPON TODAY.

Suppose the news is unfavorable?

"If it's important, good or bad, the investor is entitled to have it. So it should be publicized."

Just where does a broker fit in as a source of information?

"When you walk into an office of a member firm of the Stock Exchange, the broker expects you to ask him for facts. Maybe he has information that has escaped your notice. Or his firm may have done some additional research. The smart investor will ask the broker's opinion of what the information means."

Does all this mean there is little risk when you buy listed stocks?

"On the contrary, every investment has risk, and not every listed stock is for you. The important thing is to use judgment based on facts. Facts about yourself—how much you can invest after expenses and emergencies; whether your goal is growth, or dividends, or a more conservative approach with bonds. Then facts about companies that interest you. Before deciding, I think every investor should take into account the advantages listed stocks offer."

Politicians Getting Big Play by Comedy Writers

NEW YORK (AP) — With election day approaching and a presidential year in the offing, television's hard pressed sketch and comedy writers now have a subject they can get their ball point pens into: politics.

Bob Hope's variety show on Monday night, for instance, devoted about half of its time to matters political. Hope's opening monologue raved around with one-liners that hit everyone from Romney to Reagan, from the White House to De Gaulle—and some of the remarks were sharp-tongued, even for Hope.

The principal sketch of the NBC program was a little drama about a California political boss—played by Hope with cigar and derby—hunting for a movie political remarks. The Smothers Brothers material has a keener cutting edge that could inflict some wounds.

Whether it is because there is currently so much competition in the television variety field now or because Hope has only one show a month to contend with, his program is brighter, better written and better produced than in recent seasons.

The political sketch had point and purpose, Miss Reynolds was great in a lethal impression of Zsa Zsa Gabor but something less in imitations of Shirley Temple, Carol Baker and Phyllis Diller. Her best moments were in a dance number—she is surprisingly good as a song-and-dance girl.

Hope's most amusing sketch was poking fun at hippies with the help of Eydie Gorme and Steve Lawrence. But the subject is fast becoming a cliché.

CBS's "Carol Burnett Show" which started weak, continues to improve steadily in content and form. It went well Monday night with an unlikely combination of women guest stars. There was Phyllis Diller with her usual monologue about housewifery, fang and in-laws. Gwen Verdon had a charming and whimsical dance number. Bobbie Gentry sang in her very pleasant, distinctive style.

Carol, a very funny woman, works well and with discipline with Harvey Korman, one of the regulars in the show. They were both effective in a bit of nonsense built around Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde.

Recommended tonight: "Do Not Go Gentle into That Good Night," CBS, 9:30-11 EDT, Melvyn Douglas and Shirley Booth in an original drama by Loring Mandel about a man outliving his usefulness.

One of the rarest tattoos today is worn on the arm of an anonymous Briton who made history with his strange request. England's leading tattooist had pricked thousands of young men's arms with hearts, flowers, or scrolls labeled "Mother"—possibly the most favored of all tattooed sentiments. So he was understandably startled one day when a customer requested a design of a beer bottle, two crossed smoking pipes and the inscription "To Dad." The customer explained that he was very fond of his father, whose 75th birthday was coming up, and thought the old man would appreciate the sentiment behind the pictured beer and tobacco he liked. The tattooist happily needed the design; the old man was reported to be highly pleased, and the customer preserves the only known tattoo that honors Father instead of Mother.

The Answers to City Bulge and Decay

By Robert P. Gerholz
PRESIDENT, CHAMBER OF COMMERCE OF THE UNITED

...The revolution sweeping urban America tends to get confused with the boom in population. Actually, it's the shift, rather than the growth of population that has struck our cities -- a shift that is spurred along by our great technological explosion. It's the movement to cities of those displaced from mechanized farms; the congregation of Negroes and other minorities in urban centers; the drifting of skilled persons to places of better job opportunity; in fact, it's our whole general mobility. We are the "movingest" people on earth. More than 36 million Americans will change addresses this year. This, of course, is one of the attributes of our free and open society.

All this movement has a tremendous impact on community life -- on our housing and schools, on transportation and community facilities generally. It creates problems of downtown blight, of air and water pollution, of how to fit a heavy influx of unskilled and uneducated people into our era of rapid change. It raises the requirement of total development of our communities. And above all, it raises the challenge of how to work ourselves out of these difficulties with the framework of our free market system.

Mr. Gerholz' remarks are excerpted from his recent speech to the Mankato, Minn. Chamber of Commerce.

We are faced with the tragic disorganization of so many of our communities, large and small. Some of the cities that are the heart of our urban civilization are afflicted with unhealthy bulges in some sports and run-down neglect in others; with slum congestion, and paralysis; with antiquated but lack of adequate housing codes and lax enforcement; with every indication that the local leaders lack a sense of general direction and responsibility. There is prosperous but aimless sprawling along the outer fringes of most cities, and ugly decay at the center.

And yet, two out of every three families in the United States are living in those urban areas today -- and in another ten years, three quarters of our people will be city dwellers.

...What we want to know now is this: "What can we do to remake our cities into the decent, self-

Measles can cause mental retardation. Now, for the first time, you can protect your child against measles and its serious complications, with a new vaccine.

You don't think of pain, ordinary measles as a dangerous disease. And, fortunately, it usually isn't. However, sometimes measles causes encephalitis or inflammation of the brain. When this happens, there is a chance of permanent damage to a child's brain.

Today, measles with all its devastating side effects can be completely prevented by a new vaccine. Unprotected children will get measles 95 times out of 100. You got them, didn't you?

PLACING SECOND in the float competition in the Charleston high school homecoming parade was the sophomore class entry.

supporting places they were intended to be? "And where do we start?"

Perhaps if we start with the second question, we may begin to see some answers to the first one. Obviously, the place to start is right here in your home town, because this is where your particular problems exist, and, in the end, this is where they must be solved.

You don't need any outsiders to tell you what your problem areas are. But I wonder if you really know the other side of that coin? Do you really know that you also have some hidden assets that are buried all around you, waiting to be discovered and put to use? They're not too hard to locate, and they could bring new life to your city.

...I cannot emphasize too strongly my conviction that private investment is at the heart of this total community development we are talking about, and that whatever public assistance enters into the picture should be in support of the private effort.

No matter how much help you may get from outside, the job of developing this community to its full potential is your job. You alone can provide that extralift, that native touch you might call it, that can make community development here a truly outstanding example for the rest of the nation to follow.

If you are really going to be in the forefront of this national effort, and I am convinced you will be, isn't it imperative that your development program bear the distinctive local stamp, and not the uniform, mail-order brand of some Washington-directed planning? Let's keep this one important thought in mind when we consider federal aid: It is going to be distributed from a Rule Book that will impose uniform disciplines on the cities that accept it. The federal Rule Book cannot define and take into account the special advantages to which you have access to Mankato; it cannot help but inhibit the free play of imagination, originality and innovation within your community; certainly, it will put no premium on these assets. Most importantly of all, perhaps, it will stifle that community spirit of good will and cooperation which is truly developed only by people working together, tackling their problems at the roots, doing the job themselves. Uniformity somehow has an unpleasant connotation to a people like ourselves who are accustomed to an infinite variety of choices in just about every aspect of our lives, whether it be in our homes, or our clothing, our food, or our political opinions.

And I think that applies to our cities, too. We don't want to go by a federal formula as laid down for every community accepting subsidies. We want to be out of the common mold.

Besides, people get a new outlook, a new sense of pride from cooperative community effort, and the whole community benefits from it.

While conceding that there may be times when outside help is needed, we should examine each offer of federal assistance with the utmost care to make sure beyond all shadow of doubt that this is not something we can better do for ourselves.

We should ask ourselves whether the job could be done quicker and more efficiently by private investment and local initiative. Whether, in the long run, we couldn't make this a better city by choosing the wiser course now.

And, to come right down to it, there is a tendency toward federal domination of community planning. The idea of a federal community is taking form -- a community laid out and developed by federal blueprint, with local industries handpicked by federal planners, and free enterprisers excluded from the community if they don't fit into the plan.

Does that sound too much like a scare story? Like some kind of an exaggeration on my part? I wish it were. But the fact is that this is precisely the way things are heading down in the Tennessee Valley.

Let me tell you about it because so far as I know, this story has not been told before, at least not before an audience of businessmen.

The Tennessee Valley Authority is preparing to undertake a new project called the Tellico Dam. On the surface things seem to be about the same as they have been on all other TVA projects over the years. But this time there is a difference. As always, when the government buys up land for one of these projects, it takes more land than actually will be used. The extra space is needed during the construction phase for temporary facilities -- access roads and the like. The practice always has been that when the job is completed the surplus land is auctioned off publicly to the highest bidder.

But this time, instead of selling the surplus land at public auction, the government intends to hold it for direct sale to industries of its own selection. In short, the government will decide who can do business in this new community and who cannot. The land will be sold only to people who agree to do what the government tells them to do.

And not only that. Instead of acquiring the surplus land in the first place as needed specifically for the construction job, the government will buy the excess land selectively with a view to its resale value when the project is finished.

And here we go with a government - planned industrial community at the dam site!

TVA spokesmen readily acknowledge that they have this plan in mind. They boast about it. And how do they justify such a flagrant assault on free enterprise? They say the old plan was economically wasteful, that private citizens who bought the surplus acreage from these dam

Magna Carta Text and Commentary

A. E. Dick Howard
Associate Professor of Law
University of Virginia

Not only did the King have these rights against the barons, they in turn enjoyed such rights against their tenants. One can readily imagine that such a system invited exploitation, and at least fifteen of the chapters of Magna Carta regulate abuses which had crept into feudal relationships at all levels. Chapters 2 and 3 together put a ceiling on the "reliefs" to be paid by heirs claiming their inheritance and provide that heirs under age need pay no relief. Chapters 4 and 5 protect heirs against rapacious or unworthy guardians by allowing a guardian to take only "reasonable" profits from the heir's lands, by requiring the guardian to forfeit his guardianship and to make amends when he wastes the heir's property, and by enjoining the guardian to keep and maintain the heir's houses and other properties with revenues from the estate and to turn over the lands properly stocked when the heir comes of age. The parallel might be noted between these thirteen-century rules imposed for the benefit of the heir and the close watch that modern courts keep over guardians, who are required to account for their dealings with the property of sites did not always develop their property to its highest and best use. In other words, they didn't manage their affairs the way the government wanted them to, so the government must take charge.

"We want to make sure that the investment achieves the regional objectives and also that it will really boost the basic economy of the area and produce more jobs," was the way one TVA spokesman put it, and the explanation would be quite satisfactory if one were willing to write off our free market economic system.

...The deep-rooted problems of modern urban life have been treated unwisely for far too many years to justify hope for any quick or easy solutions. In some places we have reached the point where even the most responsible and public-minded citizens sometimes are tempted to give up, to say: "What's the use? The job is too big for anything but massive federal intervention." This inevitably leads to uneconomic decisions.

Let's face it; some community leaders are doing that right now. But in the long run, they are going to find themselves falling behind, because the community that does just a little bit more on its own can't fail to wind up with something extra. It can't miss being a stronger, healthier place than the neighboring city that must lean on the crutch of outside help.

It's going to be a long, hard and expensive job, difficult if we go about it the right way. For one thing, we must set workable priorities that fit our capabilities, instead of attempting to do the entire job in one great spending splurge that might well bankrupt us. In the past, urban renewal activities have been piecemeal operations. In their place, we should develop an overall program that takes into account all the varied requirements of the city for a predictable time in the future and then proceeding in orderly fashion to put its elements into place.

The precious quality of leadership has never failed America in all our history. It will not, it must not, fail her now. This land we love is not a gift to those of us now living, but a trust, a heritage from the past which we may hold for a little while and then hand on to those who will come after. It is ours today, not to scatter, or dissipate, but to enrich and ennoble...

that at least some kinds of exacting could not be had without consent there lay a ready example for those who in later ages sought ancient precedents for the claim of the right of a people to be taxed only with their consent.

Chapter 15 extends to all "free men" the assurance, given to the barons in chapter 12, that levies may be exacted from them only for the three specified kinds of aids and that those aids must be "reasonable." Chapter 16 limits the service which must be performed for a "knight's fee." Other provisions in the Charter - chapters 32, 43, and 46 - deal with the return of the lands of convicted felons to the lords of the fees, the holding of escheats, and the guardianship of abbeys.

Outlook for Business

Joseph S. Wright
President

Zenith Radio Corporation

It is obvious that the forecasting business -- at least on the optimistic side -- is more hazardous now than it has been for a number of years. In the first six months of 1967, it became apparent that the consumer electronics industry had to temper its earlier projections for the year.

The whole appliance industry in the first half suffered from the adverse weather conditions in the first quarter and the second quarter shutdowns caused by the trucking strike, not to mention the general softening of business activity during the period.

In the case of color television, in the first six months the industry achieved a substantial gain over the record first six months of 1966, but this contributory gain to total consumer electronics volume was offset by the anticipated decline in sales of several other home entertainment products. Nevertheless, the consumer electronics industry doubtless equaled the 1966 first-half record.

In the "white goods" end of the major appliance business, the first six months was only slightly behind the record first six months of 1966. As in the case of consumer electronics, some major segments of the business were off from 1966; but this loss was mitigated by large gains in sales of air conditioners and added gains in several other product areas.

The small appliance industry remained strong, and a good year as a whole is anticipated for this segment.

Looking ahead to the balance of the year, it is risky to be very optimistic in the face of the deteriorating international situation and the tremendous pressures on the domestic economy, but I am hopeful that the whole appliance industry will have a fine six months, with a chance to well surpass the fast pace of the last half of 1966 as the economic situation improves.

Housing starts are showing an improvement. There has been some easing of interest rates and restrictions on credit. Nearly 80 per cent of American homes are still without a color television receiver. The industry has a wider spectrum for choice of screen sizes in styling and pricing categories. This will considerably broaden the customer choice of products and stimulate buying. An adequate field inventory should be another plus factor in accomplishing a good increase in color. More than one half of the homes in the country still need an air conditioner, clothes dryer, dishwasher, or some other major appliance, and one half of the homes in the country have a major appliance which needs replacement.

While there has been an overaccumulation of inventory in some categories of the appliance business, it is observable that these "bulges" will be substantially reduced and in a normal balance situation early in the second half of the year. With sustained high levels of employment and consumer disposable income, together with products such as color television sets and air conditioners high on the most-wanted lists of consumer intentions-to-buy surveys, the present sideways trend of the industry should be improved in the second half of 1967. It is quite likely that our industry will sell a million more color sets in the last half of this year over the last half of 1966, which will make a very good year indeed for the consumer electronics industry.

APPLIANCE INDUSTRY

Ever see a beautiful lawn or garden that "just happened?" Not likely. They result from plenty of time, effort -- and water.

During the hot, dry summer months, many communities experience a serious shortage of water, municipal restrictions; even bans, are placed on lawn and garden sprinkling.

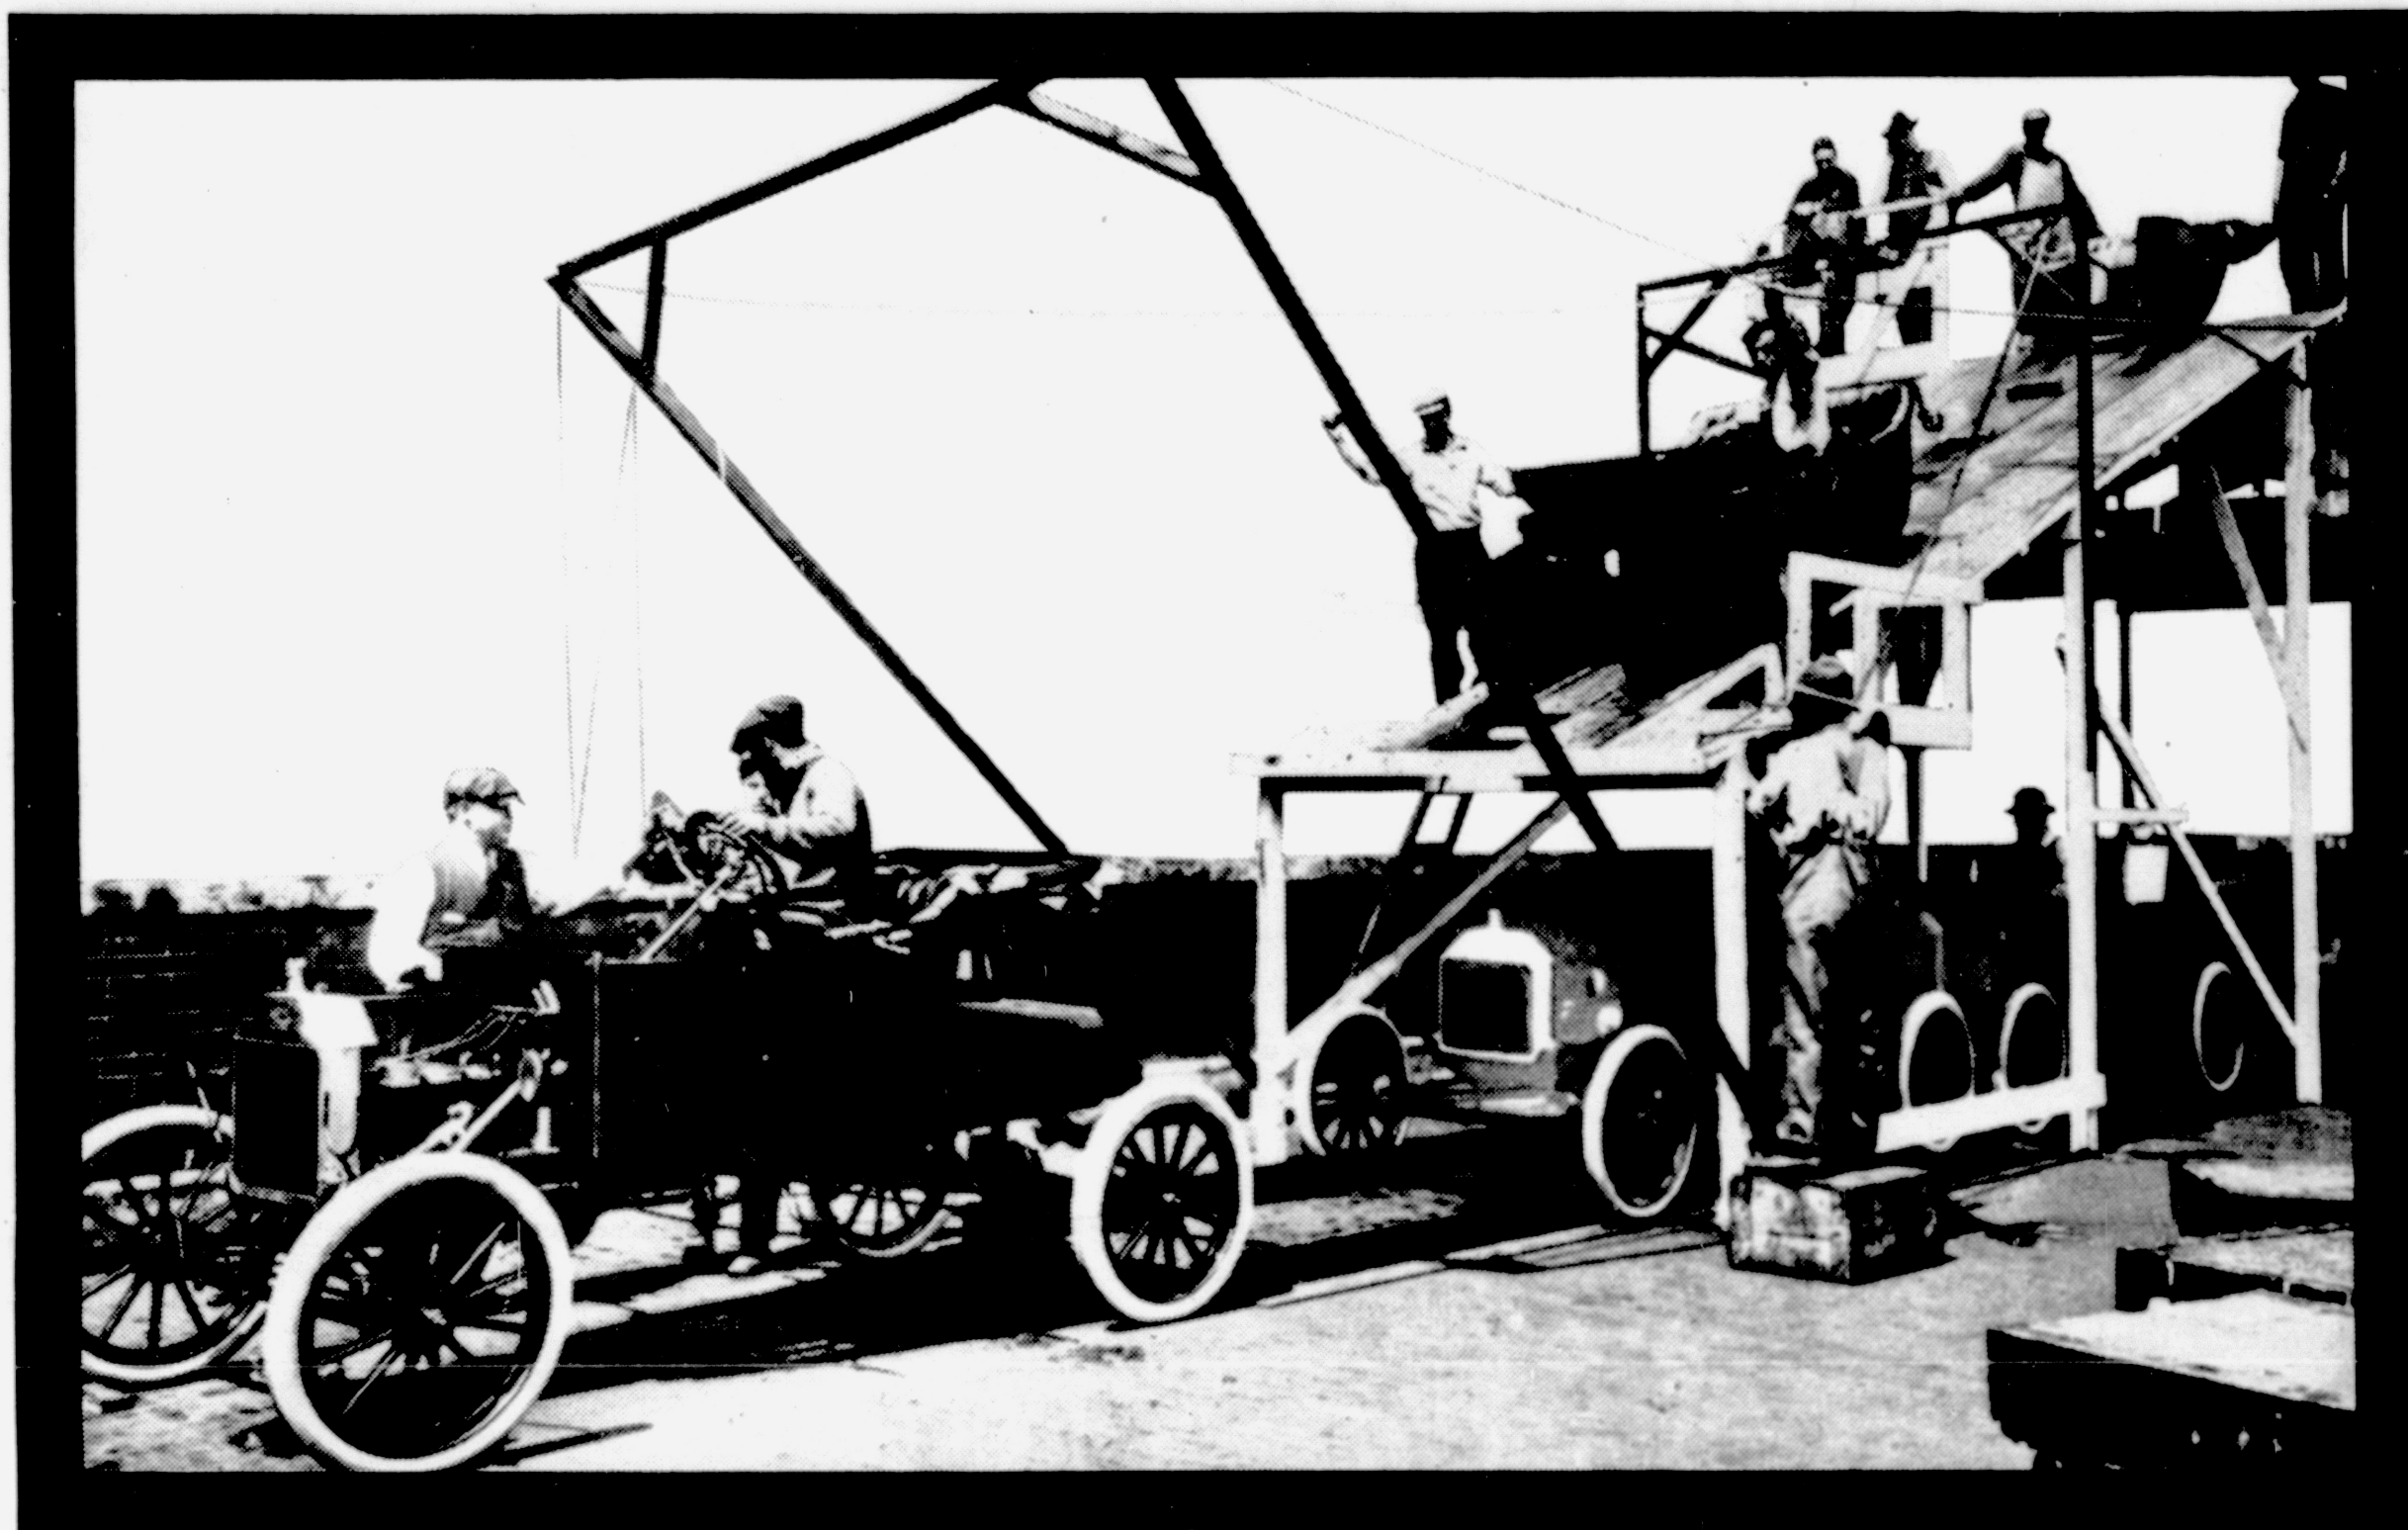

What to do? For more and more homeowners, especially in the suburbs, the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau says, the answer is a private water system, utilizing a well installed near the home. With a private system, an unlimited water supply is available for all uses -- watering lawns and gardens, washing cars, filling backyard wading and swimming pools -- and all at a cost usually below municipal rates. About 10 million families in the U.S. now have such systems.

A qualified plumbing contractor or water systems dealer will be glad to help you determine the water needs of your home, and plan the well and water system that will best meet those demands.

POPULATION UP SLIGHTLY

STOCKHOLM (AP)—Sweden's population grew by about one per cent in 1966 to reach a total of 7,843,088, the Central Bureau of Statistics announced. Immigration from abroad, a total of 27,240 persons, figured largely in the growth.

The surplus of births over deaths in Sweden last year was 44,914, an increase of 0.6 per cent. The bureau said that only Austria, Belgium, East Germany and Hungary among European countries have a lower natural population increase than Sweden.

Any color as long as it's black.

That's how they did it with the fabulous Model T.

It was a unique car, it was in a price range all its own, and if you wanted one, that was your choice of color. And a lot of people wanted one.

Then, all of a sudden people wanted more of a choice. They didn't make speeches or write their Congressmen. They didn't even stop to think about it. They just went out and bought another color.

And the automotive industry was paying attention. Which is why, today, if you care to, you can just about design your own car—what with all the optional choices of engine, transmission, suspension, wheels, bodies. That's the way the system works.

The one thing that hasn't changed from the good old days to the good new days is this: "You pays your money and you takes your choice."

Masses Of Flowers For Masses Of People

If you've ever been in Washington, D. C. between 4:30 and 6:00 P.M. you've seen its masses of people heading for home as fast as possible. But at other times of day there are other masses of people.

During the noon hour government employees come from buildings to sit on the grass while they eat lunch. Tourists by the thousands wander about, eager to photograph colorful scenes. School children come and go, attracted by beautiful blossoms. Foreign visitors mentally compare the city with their own capital.

It's for these masses of passing people that the masses of flowers in Washington's parks, her school grounds, her public areas are grown. While plans are afoot to construct underground garages to house 20,000 cars along with many similar projected enormous public works, over 375,000 tulips actually were planted last fall; enjoyed during the past spring. Thus the flowers are certain raisers for the more permanent projects.

Just as you plan your garden in advance so landscape architects of the National Park Service plan the plantings of hundreds of public areas. Some of the 700 city parks, some of its school grounds have been relandscape with contributions from the public through the Society for a More Beautiful Capital. Trees and shrubs have largely been used in these places. But in other areas, sometimes the small odd-shaped ones between the diagonal avenues and the gridwork of streets, sometimes larger ones the National Park Service because of their consistent performance during hot, dry weather. Washington boasts many "floral display areas."

Under trees may be a large planting of azaleas, shrubs which blossom in brilliant colors in spring. Or large beds of gay tulips or daffodils. Or, perhaps, the deeper hues of thousands of pansies.

When these flowers have faded, annual plants are used to overplant or follow them. Petunias are favorites because of their consistent performance during hot, dry weather. Used with gray-leaved dusty miller and green and white caladium foliage the varieties Pink Magic and White Cascade brighten Mt. Vernon Square. White Cascade is combined with pink Carefree geraniums in plantings on the Water Gate Memorial Bridge Plaza.

The 14th Street bridge approaches, a whole complex of highways, are enhanced by large mass plantings of Spun Gold marigold and Celosia. Forest Fire plus kochia or burning bush. Pershing Square at 15th and Pennsylvania boasts striking groupings of Spun Gold, Forest Fire and Pink Magic petunia while Moonlight petunia, Purple Robe niemeburgia, and yellow, tree-form lantanas make spots of color in Pulaski Park.

Your city may need to exercise patience while public works are planned and completed but any community can go right ahead refurbishing its parks with those certain raisers — masses of annual flowers — just like Washington, D.C.

Welfare Worker Protests Vague Talk

Dear Ann Landers: I am a social worker in the welfare department of a medium-sized city in California. Everywhere I go, when someone learns I'm in the welfare department, I get the same tiresome routine. It goes like this: "Why don't you get those chiselers off the relief rolls? I know of a case where the guy is working and collecting unemployment compensation."

Here's another one: "We are encouraging women to have illegitimate babies by giving them aid money for every kid they bring into the world. These no good tramps keep having a baby every year so they can collect the aid money."

I'd like to say something to everyone who "knows a case." Welfare agencies don't want to hand out money to chiselers. Please give us some real information like the names and addresses of the people instead of vague talk. We employ investigators whose job it is to check out fakery and fraud. If you will help us nail the fakers we'd appreciate it, but no more vague talk, please. -- K.P.M.

Dear K.P.M.: I've heard the same chatter and I am not a welfare worker. Thank you for telling me what to say to these people.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a girl, one of five children, and thoroughly disgusted with my parents. Mom and Dad have been married 21 years and all they have ever done since I can remember is fight, fight, fight. They throw things, yell, curse, and lock each other out of the house. What's more, they don't care who sees or hears them.

The day after one of these disgusting knock-down, drag-out brawls they act like a couple of lovebirds -- as if nothing happened. How can people be so changeable?

I've told my mother a dozen times that if she had an ounce of self-respect she would throw Dad out of the house. (He is the one who starts most of the fights.) She says, "You are right," but she never does anything about it.

What can I do to get Mom to throw Dad out so we can have some peace and quiet around our place? -- WAR ZONE

Dear Zone: Nothing. So give up already. If your parents have been battling for as long as you can remember, they will probably continue to battle for the rest of their lives.

Some people get their kicks from fighting and making up. It's unfortunate that these kooks don't do their fighting out in the middle of the desert where they could scream their childish heads off and no one would hear them, but they seem to enjoy performing for an audience.

If You Were the Judge Husband Stole from Wife, She Had to Pay His Tax

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Myrtle operated a very successful business. And, while she'd ring up the profits with glee, her husband Ike would ring up his hands in anticipation. As an employee of her firm, he had been embezzling money from her for years. What's more, they had been signing joint income tax returns. The result? When the government discovered Ike's skuldery, it insisted that Myrtle pay the income taxes on the embezzled funds since Ike was flatter than a pancake and couldn't pay it.

"You must be off your rocker," Myrtle told an Internal Revenue agent. "You want me to pay income taxes on money that my husband stole from me."

"Sorry, lady," was the answer, "but that's the law. Income taxes must be paid on embezzled funds. And, since you signed a joint return with your husband, you're as responsible for the unpaid taxes as he is."

Refusing to part with a plugged nickel, Myrtle ended up in court.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make Myrtle pay taxes on money embezzled from her by a rascally husband? This is how the judge ruled: Myrtle had to pay. The judge ruled that when a person signs a joint income tax return, he becomes individually and jointly responsible for all taxes due under the tax return whether fully reported or not. Only when that person's signature is obtained by fraud, coercion, etc. will he be excused. In this case, the judge concluded the husband while he was sympathetic to Myrtle, her husband had not tricked or defrauded her into signing the tax return, (based upon a 1967 U. S. Tax Court Decision).

Auto Strike

Talks Continue

DETROIT (AP) -- Negotiators for the United Auto Workers and Ford Motor Co. early today ended their longest bargaining session since the union struck Sept. 7.

After meeting for more than 16 hours at Ford headquarters in suburban Dearborn, the bargainers broke off their talks at 3:15 a.m., ending hopes that they were engaged in round-the-clock discussions which would herald an agreement on a new contract.

They planned to meet again today at 11 a.m. Walter P. Reuther, UAW president, and Malcolm L. Denise, Ford vice president for labor relations, were expected to lead their negotiators back to the table.

Despite the length of the session, and an optimistic statement issued Monday night, there was no solid evidence that a settlement would come today or even in the next few days.

The joint statement described the negotiations "as serious, good-faith collective bargaining."

It was the first statement issued through a news blackout since the two sides announced last Friday that the company had made a new contract offer and that the union had responded with a counterproposal.

It was issued as negotiators took an hour break for dinner and came shortly after a bargaining table source told The Associated Press that the company appeared to be bending on the union's No. 1 demand—guaranteed annual income.

The bargaining table source said that Ford had given an "inkling" of willingness to meet the demand for guaranteed annual income.

But he said that no figures had been laid on the table by Monday afternoon.

Ford had given what some took to be such an inkling before, but the new comment apparently means that the issue—opposed by the industry which feels it would be paying people to loaf—is still on the table, possibly the main issue blocking agreement.

By guaranteed annual income, the union wants assurance that a worker who begins a year employed will be paid for the full year regardless of lay-offs.

Taxpayers Pay $2 a Year For Inspection

Warren R. Manning, Scott county sanitarian, told the Optimist club that it costs each taxpayer $2 per year to maintain a health inspection service for the county.

He said that all eating places were inspected regularly.

"To receive the food rating stickers for eating establishments, 17 items in the kitchen are inspected. The two most important points of inspection are dishwashing and refrigeration."

In order to rate an A sticker, a food establishment must score between 90 and 100 per cent. A B sticker grade is below 90 per cent, and a C sticker is one that has violated all major standards, is given points known to the owner or 30 days to make changes, or else manager, and not to us, because the place is subject to being they are anxious to hold their

The purchase of poor food is a major infraction of lowering the rating, followed closely by refrigeration and cleanliness of handling dishes.

Milk is checked in a laboratory in Poplar Bluff each month for bacteria count. He said the 30 milk suppliers in the county are inspected regularly.

"Any place that serves food or drink is subject to inspection," he said. A place that serves coffee, or drink by the glass, must maintain a 180-degree rinse water for washing.

"The greatest help the public per cent, and a C sticker is one that has violated all major standards, is given points known to the owner or 30 days to make changes, or else manager, and not to us, because the place is subject to being they are anxious to hold their

FIJI FAMILY PLANNING

SUVA, Fiji (AP) -- The Fiji Family Planning Association reported some success in its effort to reduce this colony's high birth rate.

It said in its annual report that attendances at the British colony's family planning clinics were good in 1966 when the birth rate was 34.87 per 1,000 of population.

Ten years ago the rate was 41.91.

The association said its target was to reduce the rate to 25 per 1,000 (Rate in the United States in 1965 was 19.4 per 1,000.)

Just over half of Fiji's 483,000 people are of the Indian race.
